Journal of Modern Literature in Chinese (JMLC) is published twice a year by the Centre for Humanities Research, Lingnan University. This journal provides a forum for discussing issues related to any aspect of modern or contemporary literature in Chinese. It aims to contribute to scholarly discourse on Chinese literature written in and outside of Mainland China. It is hoped that, by placing Chinese and Western scholarship "back-to-back," the journal will become a channel for fruitful interchange and dialogue among scholars in Asia, Europe and America.

All the submitted articles are subject to a blind review process. The opinions of two scholars in the relevant subject are solicited before a publication decision is made. Such peer review ensures that only articles of the highest quality will be published.

The journal also features book reviews and review articles. Literary translations from Chinese to English as well as translations of seminal works in the field will be accepted only where they are seen to be relevant to critical inquiry.

JMLC is indexed in the MLA International Bibliography and listed in the Directory of Periodicals. Its full electronic version is available under the “Humanities International Complete” in the EBSCOhost electronic databases. The views expressed by the authors do not necessarily reflect those of the publishers.
